

Hi! I’m Aviva

I enjoy zip-lining, traveling, singing, and reading about superheroes.

I have Type 1 Diabetes

- My body is awesome, but it needs a little help.
- Type 1 Diabetes means that my pancreas doesn't make insulin.
- Insulin is like a "key" that allows sugar to enter cells.
- Without insulin, my body cannot use the carbs and sugar in food to give me energy. Instead, the sugar stays in my blood and makes me tired.
- So I take insulin as a medicine to stay healthy and play with you! ☺
- Type 1 diabetes is not contagious. You cannot catch it like the flu.

Math helps me manage my blood sugars!

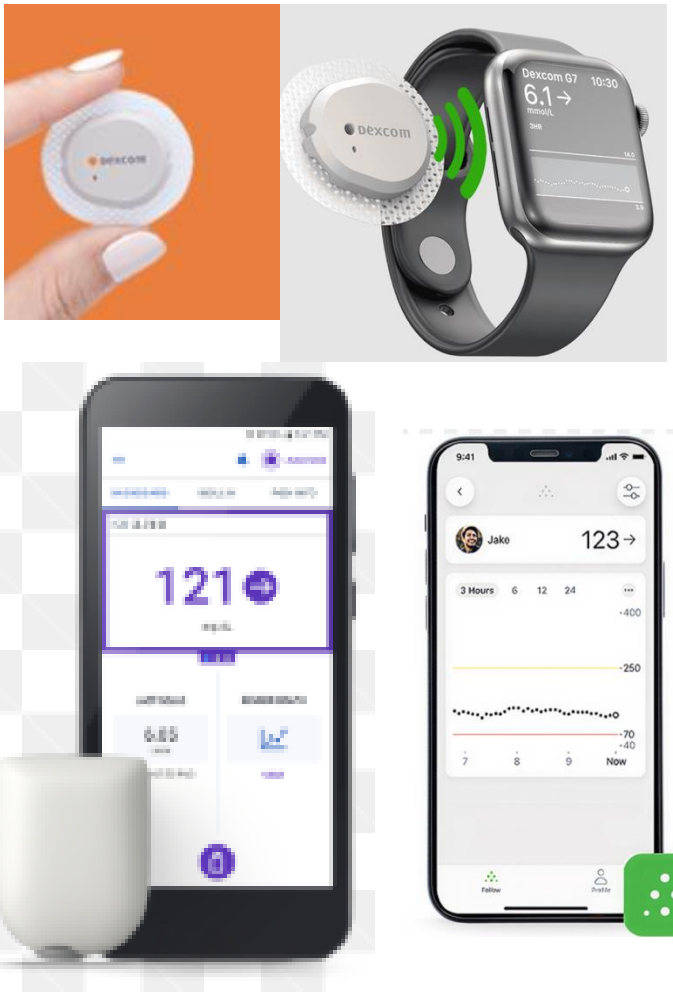

- Blood sugar = how much sugar is in our blood from the food we eat. I use math to "think like a pancreas" and keep it just right!

- When it's too low, I feel shaky, sweaty, or dizzy.
  - I eat a quick snack like juice or candy to fix it! It's a treat! It's also like medicine for me.

- When it's too high, I feel thirsty or tired.
  - I give myself insulin to feel OK and drink more water. Don't worry, it's easy and I know how to handle it!

Technology helps manage my T1D

- I check my blood sugar with a sensor. You'll see a patch on my arm.
- My sensor connects to my watch that alerts me when I'm high or low.
- I wear a POD on my legs that gives me insulin. I use a phone-like device "PDM" to manage the Pod.
- These devices work together to help me think like a pancreas!
- They don't hurt much. I like to think I'm a superhero like IronMan or Cyborg! ☺

Lots of famous people have T1D…

Thank you for listening!

- Don’t worry if you hear my pump or pod beep or make sounds – it alerts me to have a snack.
- Sometimes, I check my sugar or eat a snack in class when I feel dizzy.
- I can help you with Algebra. I use it daily.
- Any questions?
